Williams Scotsman Responds to Florida's Space Needs After the Wrath of Charley

Orlando, Florida - In the aftermath of Hurricane Charley's devastation, Williams Scotsman is busy providing mobile offices and portable classrooms to businesses and school systems across the state. The company's extensive experience in dispatching temporary space after natural disasters allows them to respond at a moment's notice, a significant advantage in the wake of this crisis.

For the thousands of businesses and schools that have experienced devastation to existing structures, Williams Scotsman is providing temporary space during the rebuilding process. In addition, many school districts throughout Florida utilize relocatable classrooms. For those that sustained damage, Williams Scotsman is supplying replacement units so that the schools can prepare for the restart of the school year without interruption. Williams Scotsman offers one-stop shopping for temporary classroom and office space. The company has Type 4 and Type 6 classrooms, as well as hundreds of mobile offices, in stock and ready to go. They can also provide steps, ramps, furniture and more to complete space in a hurry.

Despite the overwhelming demand for temporary space, Williams Scotsman is providing their same high-quality products, fair pricing and excellent service. For customers and school districts with contracts already in place, the new space can be supplied under those existing contracts at the established rate structure, expediting the process.
