Williams Scotsman Hires Vice President to Head Modular Building Division

Newly Established Position Underscores Company's Commitment to Permanent Modular Construction

Baltimore, MD – March 7, 2005 – Williams Scotsman announces the recent hiring of Joseph C. Lopardo as Vice President of its Modular Building Division (MBD). Lopardo will be responsible for all facets of the Modular Building Division including sales, operations, business development, and the overall performance of the U.S. Modular Building Division.

The creation of this senior management role centralizes the leadership of the company's six regional MBD locations, positioning Williams Scotsman as a major force in the permanent modular construction industry. Joe Donegan, Executive Vice President of Field Operations, commented, "The expansion of our Modular Building Division is an important part of Williams Scotsman's strategy for delivering broader solutions to our customers, particularly in the education, federal government and healthcare markets. The addition of Joe to our management team further crystallizes our focus and will ultimately contribute to the successful execution of our plan."

"I am extremely pleased to join Williams Scotsman, especially at this point in the enormous growth cycle of both the company and the modular building industry as a whole. The nucleus of the MBD team here contains some of the most experienced personnel in the industry, as evidenced by Williams Scotsman's tremendous reputation as an industry leader. The company's commitment to sustainable growth in a variety of market segments has always impressed me. It is truly exciting to further grow my career with Williams Scotsman and I am anxious to contribute to their continuing success," said Lopardo.

Lopardo brings over ten years of modular building experience as well as strong alliance development skills to his new role. Most recently, he served as GE's North American Director of Sourcing and Warranty with an emphasis on developing the Custom Sales Market in Mexico. Additionally, he has been a member of the Modular Building Institute's Board of Directors for four years and currently is an MBI Board Advisor for their regional councils.
