Williams Scotsman's Turn-Key Modular Solutions Focus on Healthcare Sector Needs
Permanent Modular Construction Augments Company's Temporary Space Solutions

Baltimore, MD – May 16, 2005 – This week at the Premier Annual Breakthroughs Conference and the American Institute of Architects (AIA) National Convention, Williams Scotsman announces its continued commitment to providing builders and architects, specifically in the healthcare industry, quality solutions to the time-sensitive occupancy demands that often accompany building projects. Williams Scotsman, already a leading mobile office and storage product provider throughout North America, also manages the development of large permanent modular building projects from initial design to delivery and installation of the permanent structure. The flexibility of modular construction allows the medical and healthcare delivery community to function with minimal interruptions during refurbishment, renovations, and expansion of healthcare networks. In business for more than fifty years, the company provides turn-key permanent modular buildings, acting as the general contractor on a variety of projects from concept to completion.

A healthcare system in California benefited from the convenience and versatility of modular building design and enhanced its patient service reach when it required space for an additional medical facility. "The Point Arena Dental Building has become an important cog in bringing healthcare to a remote area. The building, itself, has been a wonderful facility. Although modular in construction, the outside has been worked to blend in with Point Arena's historic look. Best of all, the building has been well accepted by a rather picky local populace," according to Dr. James Garrett, Dentist for the Point Arena Dental Center.

Further sustaining the company's commitment is its connection to trusted resources and associations that provide a range of healthcare solutions. Last year, Williams Scotsman joined Premier as a

Contracted Supplier of mobile and modular space. The Williams Scotsman/Premier supply network helps ensure that members of healthcare organizations have access to a reliable vendor that can provide quality, cost-effective modular building solutions from outpatient clinics to dialysis facilities to complete critical access hospitals.

“Permanent modular construction is well suited to the urgent and often specialized nature of the healthcare industry. We’re proud to offer a broad range of modular building solutions, such as critical access hospitals and diagnostic imaging centers that enable healthcare providers to keep up with demand and to provide focused care in rural areas that would otherwise not have access to these types of facilities,” stated Joe Lopardo, Vice President for Williams Scotsman’s modular building group.
